WORDS TO THE MEMBERS FROM "CROW"...

Charles Duckworth, 1964-65 ASFC President

The 8th Annual Conclave was staged through the combined efforts of the N. C. State Forestry Club, the faculty and staff of the School of Forestry, and many interested individuals and firms. The May 1 week-end climaxed 3 years of work by our club to finance the Conclave, and we express due thanks to all of the visiting delegates for making our efforts worthwhile.

Our planning for the Conclave began in the fall of 1964 as a Conclave Committee. The Committee reviewed past conclaves to aid us in formulating our plans, collected information for future use in our planning, and coordinated the fund-raising efforts by the club.

The 1964-65 ASFC officers were elected following the 7th Annual Conclave at Broken Bow, Oklahoma. An organization designed to carry out final arrangements for the May 1 week-end was set up in the fall of 1964. A committee was formed to take care of each phase of the Conclave, and work was started well in advance of the big day so that we could do the best we could as host club with the resources at hand. The Association officers coordinated the efforts of the seven committees and took care of banquet plans, correspondence, and efforts to obtain additional funds and team prizes. The above arrangement appeared to involve the most people with the greatest results since interest was stimulated throughout the club and the School of Forestry.

Since our club chose to participate in the Conclave as well as play host, considerable care was taken to insure that N. C. State could not be favored in any event. The meeting of team captains prior to the Conclave was invaluable in clearing up any questions concerning the execution and judging of events, and we recommend such a meeting prior to future Conclaves.

The competition in the 8th Annual Conclave was keen, the fellowship great, and the participation most gratifying. Continuation of the Association and the Conclave in this tradition depends upon hard work, sacrifice, and enthusiasm by its members in the future. We sincerely hope that the host clubs in the future can take away the same memories that the 8th Annual Conclave has given to us.

THE ARKANSAS A and M FORESTRY CLUB
by
Curtis Collum

The Arkansas A & M Forestry Club, with a membership of about seventy, is the largest organization of the A & M campus. It is also one of the most active organizations, and one of the few in which freshmen and sophomores are active.

The Forestry Club won first place in the Homecoming decoration for this year. We participated in the intramural sports each year and have been one of the top winners throughout the years. We have one banquet and two socials each year.

We try to have a guest speaker one meeting each month. The speakers are foresters or persons in other fields in which the club members are interested.

In order to promote academic improvement, the club presents a junior and a senior scholarship award each year to one of the members. The club also presents two annual leadership awards for the students who do the most to promote club activities.

The big event of the year is the annual Conclave. All the club members work to earn money for the Conclave. Much of this work is done in the School forest, and serves as an opportunity to learn as well as to earn money for the Conclave.

Shortly before the Conclave, we hold our annual banquet. At the banquet we announce the winners of our field day. These winners represent us at the Conclave in the various events. Also at the banquet the winners of the scholarship and leadership awards are announced.

We are very proud of our club and feel that our success in the Conclave for a number of years gives us just reason for pride, as well as our activities at A & M.

AUBURN UNIVERSITY FORESTRY CLUB
by
Faceless Fernhopper

The Auburn University Forestry Club is a student organization whose primary aim is to better relationships among the students and faculty in the Department of Forestry at Auburn. The club sponsors the annual forestry banquet and the Auburn delegation to the Association of Southern Forestry Clubs' Conclave. Membership in the club is open to any student enrolled in Forestry and to members of the staff. One staff member is appointed as faculty advisor to the club each year. Dr. Harry S. Larsen is currently serving in this capacity.

The forestry banquet this year was held in the Auburn Union Building banquet room. Mr. Peter D. Zivkovic, assistant professor of English and Forestry Summer Camp Manager for last year's camp, served as emcee and Mr. Gene Bieber, a self-made guitarist and novelty folk singer, gave an entertaining after-dinner performance.

During the course of the evening awards were presented to juniors and seniors in the department. Edgar King received the St. Regis Paper Company Scholarship. Larry Murphey and Ben Ingram received E. A. Hauss Awards for Scholastic Improvement and Austin Easterling received an E. A. Hauss Award for Scholastic Consistency. George Edwards received the L. M. Ware Outstanding Senior Award.

Since fall quarter various means of raising money to finance our club's participation in the annual ASFC Conclave at N. C. State were undertaken. Our most successful venture was offering chances to a $100 prize drawing in exchange for a minimum contribution to the Forestry Club of fifty cents.

Over-all, it has been a successful year for the Forestry Club and we are confident that next year will bring even more activities and participation.

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

by

Dewel Lawrence

The Forestry Club of the George Foster Peabody School of Forestry currently has an active membership of 85 forestry students. Our objectives include the promotion of interest in forestry and related fields, broadening the knowledge of club members, and striving to establish a feeling of brotherhood and fellowship among our forestry students. We feel that we accomplish these goals by our many activities.

New members are initiated into our club each quarter. During the winter quarter our attention is centered on the annual Lumberjack Ball, a festive and entertaining affair. During the past winter quarter, we also sponsored a highly successful show in the World University Service Carnival, "The Boy's Burlesque."

Spring quarter is a period of great activity for all of our club members. Early in April, our field day is held in preparation for the ASFC Conclave. In May our annual spring banquet allows an opportunity for recognition of, and expression of gratitude to, the graduating seniors; and also for the students who have shown outstanding performance in scholarship and extra-curricular activities.

Our club is active in intramural sports and other campus-wide activities. We are proud of our Forestry Club, and certainly intend to uphold her past record of accomplishment.

CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

by

John B. Hatcher, Jr.

The Forestry Club at Clemson University was started in 1957, the year that forestry as a four-year course was first taught. The Department of Forestry was accredited in 1962. Since 1957, the Forestry Club has grown steadily and now has about 75 members. The club is open to all forestry students and faculty.

In February, the Forestry Club advisor, Dr. William C. Randel, died suddenly. His death was a great loss to the club and the department.

Each year the Forestry Club enters a display in the Homecoming exhibits. The Forest Club display is always well-liked, and for several years it has won first place.

The Forestry Club is one of the most active organizations on campus. This year we cut firewood and pulpwood to finance our activities. The highlight of each semester's activities is the cookout and initiation of new members held at Lake Issaqueena on the school forest.

This year for the first time a Wive's Club was organized. This club, although small at this time, should prove to be a valuable asset to the Forestry Club in the future.

In the school year 1965-66, Clemson University will offer for the first time, courses leading to a M. S. degree in Forestry. This will be a very big step in the expansion of the Department of Forestry at Clemson University.

The Forestry Club was set up as a fire fighting organization under the direction of Mr. M. H. Bruner for the first time this year. This organization should prove to be very helpful in the protection of the 17,000 acre school forest.

The final event of the school year for the Forestry Club is the Senior Banquet which is much looked forward to by the seniors in forestry.

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA FORESTRY CLUB

by

Bob Perrine

The Forestry Club at the University of Florida was organized in 1935.

The basic aims of the club are to broaden the students' knowledge and interest in the field of forestry in an atmosphere of comradeship and to help develop a working relationship between the faculty and students.

The club meets twice a month. At these meetings we have speakers from forestry and related fields.

This year's activities were started off with a faculty-student smoker with all new students and prospective students invited to get acquainted. Among the other activities we held were Field Day, the annual banquet, pulpwood cut and two steak suppers.

Our annual banquet was held at the Holiday Inn on March 26 with Don Walker, public relations supervisor southern region for International Paper's as the guest speaker. Over one hundred people attended. The next day we held our Field Day in the school forest.

This year has been a real success with a marked increase in club membership and participation in club activities. There were 40 members in the club this year.

OSU FORESTRY CLUB
by
Bob Leonard

When the members of the OSU Forestry Club congregate for their biweekly meetings, we can be assured that many a problem will be discussed, many an activity will be planned, and many a cup of coffee will be chewed.

The foresters at OSU have taken pride and an active interest in all the Club's activities and apparently not in vain. This year our organization was given the distinction of being named "Outstanding Club in the School of Agriculture."

Our major activities were initiated this year with the annual Log Jam, a fall picnic with spastically inclined foresters making fools of themselves in front of wives, sweethearts, or both. This was followed not many weeks later by our homecoming float.

Of course, woodcutting still remains on top of the list of money-making projects. Christmas tree and pine cone sales also aid in filling the coffers.

The Forester's Field Day, held at Theta Pond (a centrally located campus landmark), is the basis for elimination of contestants for the Conclave. This year the competition was keen and a good time was had by all, including the hundreds of students and townspeople who congregated to watch the events.

That same night our Spring Awards Banquet was held. At this time outstanding class members and students were recognized.

Our social year will be concluded with the Conclave at N. C. State. After hosting the Conclave last year we know the work and energies that will be expended by the North Carolinians and would like to prematurely (when this was written) congratulate them on what we know will be a great Conclave.

STEPHEN F. AUSTIN STATE COLLEGE

Raymond E. Laboa

The Sylvans Club at Stephen F. Austin State College was organized in the fall of 1946. The club was organized for the purpose of furthering and promoting fellowship among forestry students and to increase their knowledge by having programs highlighting speakers well versed in the many phases of forestry. The club has grown from a modest beginning to one of the most outstanding and active social and professional clubs on campus. It has an active membership of 96 members with three advisors elected from the faculty.

The Sylvans Club sponsors many annual events such as a forestry field day, hunting and fishing trip, Christmas Dinner-Dance, Sylvans Scholarships, and publishment of the Texas Tally (Forestry Annual).

The Sylvans Club has been an active participant in intramural sports. The club has won many honors in almost every sport and has done exceptionally well in the past couple of years. The sylvans have also taken an active part in the promoting of school spirit. The club enters a float in the homecoming parade each year and has placed in the top three the last two years, winning first place this year.

VIRGINIA POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE

by

Michael Scran Neal

The VPI Forestry Club was organized shortly after World War II. The object of the organization is to further the forestry profession on both the student and practicing level by making the profession better known and binding students and professional foresters closer together. This objective is accomplished by various club activities.

Membership is open to all students, both graduate and undergraduate, enrolled in the forestry curriculum and to anyone who shows dedicated interest in the forestry profession. The present enrollment is approximately fifty members.

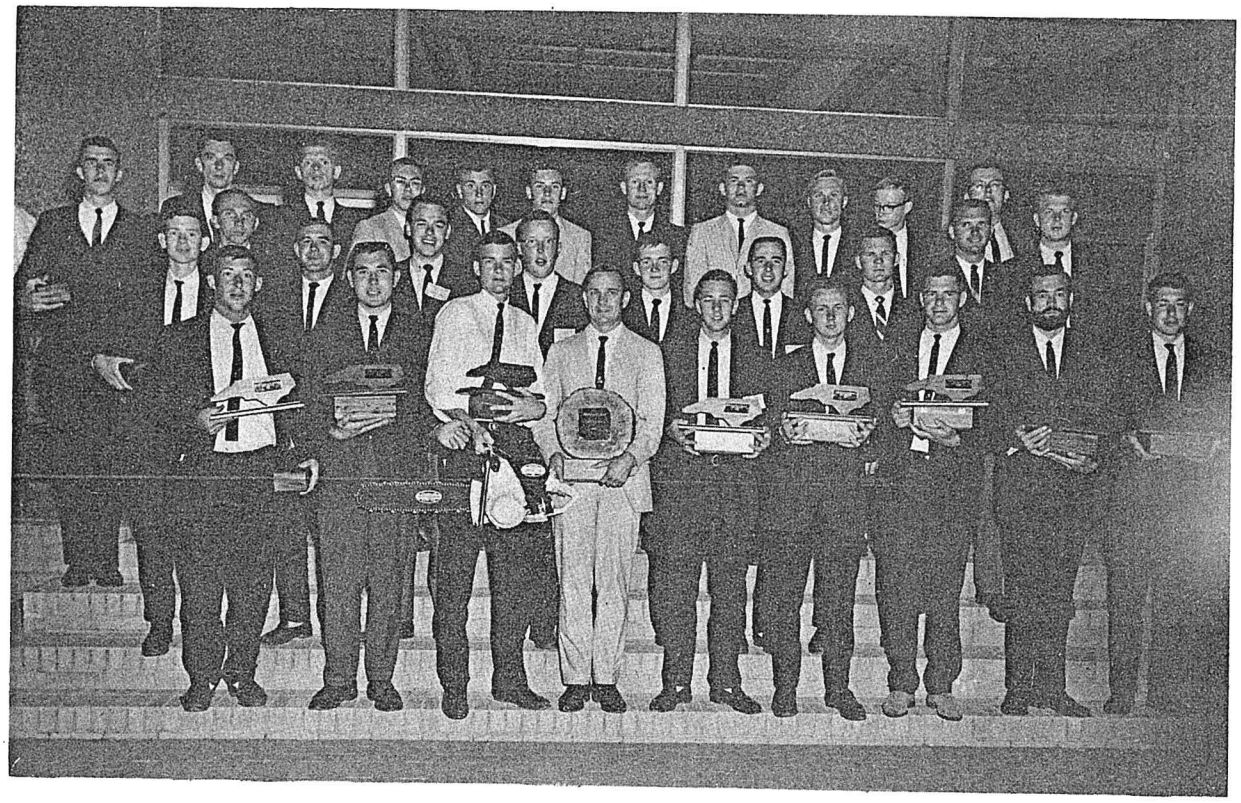

We began our year with the annual Field Day, Bar-B-Que, and 'Possum Hunt, at which we welcomed our new members. During the year we participated in the various campus activities such as the Homecoming Parade, the Virginia Tech Festival, and, of course, the big spring Conclave. In addition, The Virginia Tech Forester, our annual, is one of our big projects.

We derive our financial support from dues, raffles, tree plantings, etc. For example, we planted 23,000 seedlings this spring. We have thoroughly enjoyed our visit to Raleigh for the Eighth Annual ASFC Conclave. N. C. State University is to be commended as a perfect host, not only for well-organized plans but also for the spirit of true foresters that each member has shown so well. We are anticipating the Conclave next year at SFA.

BUSINESS MEETING OF THE 8TH ANNUAL CONCLAVE
OF THE ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHERN FORESTRY CLUBS
May 1, 1965
Charles J. Duckworth Presiding

The meeting was called to order by President Duckworth and Secretary Gregory called the roll. Clubs attending were:

Arkansas A & M College
Auburn University
Clemson University
University of Florida
University of Georgia
North Carolina State University
Oklahoma State University
Stephen F. Austin State College
Virginia Polytechnic Institute

The minutes of the business meeting of the 7th Annual Conclave were read and approved.

There being no old business, the meeting proceeded to the discussion of several items of new business. Clemson discussed the possibility of having the Conclave in the fall or at least earlier in the spring since their school calendar has changed and conflicts may occur. Florida also discussed its own tri-mester system which causes perennial conflicts with the closing of school and the Conclave. Stephen F. Austin, who will be host for the 9th Annual Conclave, will examine the possibility of having the Conclave earlier in the spring. Georgia moved that Stephen F. Austin set the date for the 9th Annual Conclave; the motion was seconded by Florida and after some discussion, the motion was voted on and passed.

Next there followed a discussion on the participation of the host club for the Conclave championship. Auburn, Stephen F. Austin, and Arkansas expressed the view that the host club has a distinct advantage over the other clubs and should not participate. Georgia expressed the opposite viewpoint, that any advantage that host club may have is immaterial, and the host club should be allowed to participate if it so desires. Arkansas moved that the host club not be allowed to participate and the motion failed because of the lack of a second.

N. C. State asked for discussion on leg and foot protectors in the log chopping event. The consensus was that some type of protection is needed. Oklahoma State moved that the choppers be required to wear hard-toed footwear and the use of shin guards be left to the individual's discretion. Auburn seconded the motion, which passed after further discussion.

N. C. State asked for discussion on methods by which the clubs financed their trips to the Conclave. Oklahoma State and Clemson explained their methods of paying the travel expenses.

Oklahoma State and Virginia Tech thanked and commended N. C. State for a successful Conclave.

Georgia requested permission to be host for the 10th Annual Conclave and there being no objections, the request was approved.

President Duckworth then adjourned the meeting.

Respectfully Submitted;
Charles J. Duckworth, President
Jimmy D. Gregory, Secretary

Excerpts From Talk at Conclave Dinner

Fred H. Claridge, State Forester

State of North Carolina

The young forestry graduate enters into a young profession. The recognition of forestry as a profession is not yet of general acceptance; therefore, the conduct of the individual forester is of great importance.

Presumably, the graduate forester has been taught to think; otherwise, he wouldn't be given his diploma. How to act as a professional is another thing.

Why should we be concerned with the individual forester's conduct? It could be called a selfish motive. The more respected the individual, the more respected the profession including all other foresters.

Be intellectually honest; don't recommend costly practices if the results won't warrant the expenditure. This may temporarily work to your disadvantage but establishes you as a sound professional.

If you expect your employer to be loyal to you, be loyal to him or the organization. If you don't like your work, make a change but do it honorably. Your past employers or superiors have a powerful advantage in the kind of report they make to inquiries as to your qualifications. Your past employer or superior has to be honest as to your strong and weak points. Be sure your conduct is not a weak point.

Watch your relationship with other foresters. Read the Society of American Forester's Code of Ethics on this point.

Promote your profession among other professionals; doctors, lawyers, etc. You will reap the harvest of practices initiated before you were born and undoubtedly you will initiate practices, the harvest coming after you are gone. This requires a faith bordering on religion.

Remember to be a successful professional forester, you can't just like forestry; you must love it!
