2008 Conclave Budget	41

September 28, 2010

That's right, it's 2010, and I've finally put the finishing touches on the 2008 Southern Forester. Most of the students that participated in this event have graduated and moved on, so I guess this is for posterity.

Hosting the 2008 ASFC Conclave was something I'd anticipated (dreaded?) since I took over advising of the UF Forestry Club in the early 2000s. Attending many well-run conclaves as both a student (back in the 1980s) and a faculty member helped but did not completely prepare me for what would need to be done. A year of planning and a couple of months of intense lead-up work did the trick, though, and I think our event went off well, despite the torrential rains and some close calls with a vicious storm.

Conclave is a team effort, and I am grateful for the many folks that pitched in to help make our event happen. I can't name everyone that helped, but I must single out a few that went over and above the call of duty. Dave Buckley and especially Mike "Dr. Conclave" Fountain were always willing to give advice and share their experience with hosting conclave. My boss and the director of the UF School of Forest Resources and Conservation, Dr. Tim White, provided steadfast financial and professional support while I was distracted with this task. Larry Korhnak took great team and competition photos. The faculty in the School were lined up to help and were indispensible for pulling off the technical events. The members of the UF Forestry Club came through when they needed to. Laura (Paterson) Sadowski and Mae Kiggins were always in the trenches for us getting website and administrative tasks done. Gary Johns and Lamar Courtney were the muscles of the operation, felling trees, moving equipment, and doing the hundreds of tasks that require heavy equipment, tools, trucks, and a good work ethic. Finally, we can't forget Dan Schultz, the Forester of our School's forest. Dan kept this effort moving from day one of planning until the cleanup was finished, and for that I am incredibly thankful. Conclave 2008 would not have happened without Dan.

Conclave has a rich history going back more than five decades, but I am concerned about its future. For a change, my concern is not about alcohol or other issues related to professionalism at Conclave – the advisors and students finally solved these problems a few years ago and the event is now highly professional and family-friendly. My concern is that in the future, fewer and fewer faculty are going to be willing to escort students to Conclave, even less to take on the responsibility of hosting the event. In the past few years we have encountered multiple clubs that have difficulty finding faculty willing to travel with them to Conclave, and in some cases this has led to schools dropping out of the ASFC. For me, one of the main reasons I have been willing to serve as Forestry Club Advisor year after year, and to dedicate a year of my time to planning and hosting Conclave, is because I love the profession of forestry, and I remember the great times I had at Conclave as a student. I predict that faculty support for Conclave will continue to fade as forestry departments become more integrated and diverse, and fewer and fewer faculty have personal experiences with the culture of forestry and with Conclave itself. This is probably an unavoidable side effect of the inevitable and necessary evolution of our profession, but it is a shame nonetheless.

On a brighter note, thanks to everybody that came down to Gainesville in 2008, and thanks also for your usual positive attitudes, great sportsmanship, and camaraderie. I'll see some of you in Athens in 2011!
